

What We Did in 2020!

The Pandemic brought change to every space and place in our world. StrataG.Works is primarily a virtual education company, and immediately, we jumped into doing our work virtually.

In response to the global emergency, this year provided pro-bono services to three smaller nonprofits and their executive team. We learned a great deal, and we are excited about the future!

We had over 300 participants join us Teaching and Learning online this year!

Completed one Strategic Planning Project that began in 2019.

Provided over 800 hours of Executive and Leadership Coaching.

Piloted a new Virtual Peer-to-Peer Fundraising Course

In our work, we came out full force this year actively combatting racism and institutionalized oppression. We have always used a Diversity, Equity, Inclusion, and Access framework and in 2020 we found the need greater than ever. Our work in this area has just begun!

- We completed 15 private consultations with nonprofit leaders about institutionalized racism in response to Black Lives Matter.
- Assisted three nonprofits with vetting their employee workshops in response to Black Lives Matter.
- We provided four informational sessions for Associations, Nonprofit consultants, and conference attendees on deconstructing institutionalized oppression (over 100 participants reached)

We Went Completely Virtual!

We usually follow a standard process for almost everything we do that includes in-person meetings, virtual self-directed learning, virtual support during the process, ending with an in-person finale. We will return to this process the minute it is safe to come out! Until then, join us online at www.stratag.works
